The Eastern Shore Community Services Board's Dogwood View is a residential training facility which offers 24 hours, 7 days a week staff supervision and support to adults ages 18 years and up with developmental disabilities who have the ability to live semi-independently.

Each person lives in their own apartment and is supported by staff on an individualized basis according to need. While promoting independence to the greatest extent considered safe for individuals, staff provide guidance and teach the skills needed in order to prepare individuals for the realities of one day living in the community without 24-hour support.

A requirement of this program is being involved in a day activity or employment.
