Rappahannock Area Community Services Board (RACSB) offers behavioral health skill building services to individuals with severe and persistent behavioral health disorders that make daily household activities difficult. RACSB helps individuals with behavioral health disorders to live independently in the community by offering skill building services, training and monitoring. Through the Supported Living program, RACSB staff provide help with budgeting, cleaning, cooking, nutrition, goal-setting and medication management. RACSB also helps individuals communicate effectively with family, friends, property owners, neighbors and community supports.
