Sheltering Arms physicians are physiatrists, specializing in the field of physical medicine and rehabilitation. This includes the diagnosis and treatment of conditions that may produce temporary or permanent physical limitations. They help patients regain function when living with neurological or orthopedic conditions, or after traumatic illnesses or accidents, surgery or other mobility limiting conditions.

Physiatrists understand how each of the body's major systems impacts function, and are dedicated to assessing and treating the whole person, not just a specific symptom. This approach provides tailored treatment plans to meet your personal recovery and lifestyle goals.

Patients may see a Sheltering Arms physiatrist in an outpatient clinic, or as the leader of your care in one of our hospitals. Sheltering Arms physicians have unique areas of specialization within the field of physical medicine and rehabilitation. The physician will use their background and expertise to help patients find the power to overcome the obstacles of their specific illness or injury and recover their independence.
