Tips for living well with diabetes

Healthy eating

- Take the time to cook. Simple recipes can be healthy and delicious.
- Write down or take photos of meals and snacks to help you stay on track.
- Try an online cooking class to learn how to make veggies taste delicious.
- Skip "diabetic" foods. They tend to be high cost and low flavor.
- Make the same food for you and your family. Healthy eating for everyone!
- Try Meatless Monday. Beans and lentils are cheap, tasty, and good for you.
- Swap veggies for rice or pasta or blend them and add to sauces.

Being active

- Being active is one of the best tools to manage diabetes, and it's free!
- Find ways to be active throughout the day, like climbing stairs.
- Work out with a friend. You'll be more likely to stick with it.
- Try an activity tracker (many are free) and watch your steps add up.
- Try online workout videos. There's something for every level of fitness.

Getting enough sleep

- Keep your bedroom dark and cool (65 degrees is recommended).
- Keep TVs, computers, and smartphones out of the bedroom.
- Get some physical activity during the day.
- Mentally unwind and relax before bedtime.
- Have a bedtime routine, like taking a shower or reading.

Healthy habits

- For new habits, start small. Small successes make bigger goals easier.
- Make goals specific: "I'm going to walk after dinner on weekdays."
- Make good choices easier, such as leaving the dog's leash by the door.

Resources and support

Diabetes self-management education and support (DSMES) can help you:

- Learn practical skills.

- Gain confidence.
- Get support.

Everyone with diabetes can benefit from DSMES, whether they're newly diagnosed or have had it for several years.

Ask your doctor to recommend a diabetes educator. You can also search the Association of Diabetes Care & Education Specialists' nationwide directory for a list of educators in your community.
